

Jalapeños Wong wait over

JALAPEÑOS 29, ANNIHILATORS 20

1993

JALAPEÑOS 29

In their first playoff appearance in five seasons, the Jalapeños (Juan Peltz & Ricky Wong) went all the way, knocking off the Annihilators, a wild card team. The Annihilators were a temporary merger of Sandy's Tight Ends and Melba Toast (Mark Cooley). In a year when league scoring was way down, the Jalapeños scored 506 points (36.14 ppg) to become the second highest scoring team in league history to this point.

ANNIHILATORS 20

EXCERPT FROM SEASON FINALE UPDATE

It was happy holidays for the Jalapeños, the team of destiny in 1993, who cut Courtney "9 points" Hawkins to pick up Mark Clayton. Clayton did not contribute, but the Peños got enough to beat the Annihilators, 29-20. The Anils, who had pushed the right free-agency buttons to get to the big game, decided to stand pat and started Dalton "let me play Mora" Hilliard. Their playoff find, Scottie Graham of the Vikes, posted nine points, but the Buffalo Defense scored 19 points less than the week before, and the Anils couldn't get any help from anywhere else.

The Cowboys waved Eric "180 yards and a TD" Pegram to go instead with the "Moose," Darryl Johnston, in their Consolation Bowl matchup with the Ballbusters. The omens came early. Steve Young and John Taylor were held scoreless on Saturday. In the Dallas game on Sunday, the real Pokes had the ball in TD territory. With the entire stadium chanting "Mooooose," Aikman handed off to... Cowboy opponent, Ballbuster Emmit Smith. But Smith was stopped short of the goal line. Once again in the 2-back set, the crowd is chanting even louder, "Mooooose..." as Smith goes in for the score. Moose also blocked for Lincoln Coleman to take one in. (Whatever happened to that Lassic guy?)

So, it looked like fate might be against the Cowboys, who had made a heavy wager in the consolation bowl: as proposed right here in Weekly Update, the Ballbusters put up their two 50-yard line seats to the Oilers' playoff game(s) up against $500 cash per home game the Oilers have in the playoffs. Alvin Harper was the only AWWFL Poke to score, while the Busters had Marcus Allen and the Kansas City Defense going on Sunday Night. But things are not always as they first appear. As the highlights shows came on late Sunday, it appeared that perhaps the New Orleans bottom game would come up big. Allen and the KC-D did not. The morning papers confirmed it; the Saints bottom game came up with 23 points. The Busters struggled to score 19. For the Busters, that's two fourth place finishes in a row. For the Cowboys, that's two tickets on the 50!

The Peños won the way they have done it all year; with balanced scoring. The Falcons struggled, but the Peños still got nine points from the Hebert/Rison combo. Both of their running backs put six on the board. The bottom game contributed a sub-par eight points, but the topers had already scored enough to win this time around. The Peños finished with the #2 QB in scoring (Hebert/78); two RBs in the top ten, including Watters (#3/69) and Bennett (#10/48). They had two of the top ten receivers, including #2 Rison (102) and #8 Proehl (45). They picked up kicker Al Del Greco when he was buried in the middle of the stats. Del Greco finished in a 3-way tie for first with 120 points, meaning that while he was with the Peños, he dominated the league. Del Greco had a major impact on two franchises this year. Drafted by the Rough Writers, he did not even attempt a field goal during a three game stretch in which the Roughies lost each time. (They eventually missed the playoffs by one game, and had the second-lowest kicker production in league history). ADG was given new life when picked up off waivers by the Peños. In the three games leading up to the Fantasy Bowl, he kicked twelve field goals to put the Japs in position to take it all. Balance wins!

...

In the high score battle, the McRockers looked like they would take it with 37, even though they left Leonard Russell's 15 on the bench. No other team had scored over thirty. The Broncos had 29, plus Marion Butts playing on Monday Night. But everyone (except the McRockers) knows that Butts is playing second fiddle to Natrone Means "Bidnizz." Oh, and the Favorites had an outside shot, with 15 points and the Anthony Miller/John Carney combo.

In the first quarter, Carney scored, and so did Means. In the second quarter, Miller scored, and so did Means. In the third quarter, Miller scored. In the fourth, Means scored. Both broke the 100-yard mark. The difference? Means, with 21 points, was on the McRocker bench, along with Stan Humphries' nine points and Leonard Russell's 15. Geez, when does this bad luck end? The Faves, thanks to the extra points their kicker got when the McRockers' reserve running back scored, won the high score by two, 39-37. The McRockers had 45 points on the bench, including 30 scored in the same game that the Faves got 22 to take the dough. The McRockers can only be thankful that there are no more games in 1993.

The Penos lost league leader Ricky Watters in Week #13 (950 yards and 10 TDs), but All-AWFFL performer Andre Rison kept them on the road to the championship.

1993 ALL-AWFFL TEAM

QB	STEVE YOUNG	Cowboys	49ers	111
RB	MARCUS ALLEN	Ballbusters	K.C.	90
RB	EMMITT SMITH	Ballbusters	Dallas	84
WR	JERRY RICE	Rough Writers	49ers	111
WR	ANDRE RISON	Jalapeños	Falcons	102
WR	STERLING SHARPE	Chiefs	Packers	81
K	RAIDERS KICKER	Chiefs	J. Jaeger	132
D	HOUSTON DEFENSE	Chiefs	Oilers	141

1993 Weekly Winners

1.	Cowboys	60
2.	McRockers	49
3.	Jalapeños	66
4.	Death Campers	47
5t.	Cowboys	46
5t.	Bubba's Broncos	46
6.	Tim's Raiders	40
7.	Jalapeños	46
8.	K.C.'s Rough Writers	59
9.	Jalapeños	67
10.	Bomballbusters	52
11.	K.C.'s Rough Writers	69
12.	K.C.'s Rough Writers	36
13t.	Cowboys	43
13t.	Jalapeños	43
14.	Jalapeños	49
15.	Jalapeños	61
16.	McRockers	46
17.	Averitt's Favorites	39

Jalapeños	6
Cowboys	3
K.C.'s Rough Writers	3
McRockers	2
Death Campers	1
Bubba's Broncos	1
Tim's Raiders	1
Bomballbusters	1
Averitt's Favorites	1

Emmitt Smith was taken with the #1 pick in the 1993 draft by the Ballbusters. It was the first of three consecutive #1 overall selections for Smith, until the Cowboy-hating Rough Writers took Curtis Martin at #1 in 1996. But Emmo was back as the #1, for the fourth and final time, in 1997.

AWFFL FANTASY BOWL

JALAPEÑOS.....29
ANNIHILATORS.....20

CONSOLATION BOWL

COWBOYS.....29
BALLBUSTERS.....19

AVE'S FAVORITES.....39
McROCKERS.....37
BUBBA'S BRONCO.....29
ROUGH WRITERS.....24
STU BRUISERS.....19
CHIEFS.....14
TIM'S RAIDERS.....13
DEATH CAMPERS.....12

WEEK #17 & 18

WEEKLY WINNER- both weeks: AVERITT'S FAVORITES (39 & 49)

1/04/94

Cowboys cop Oilers fix in consolation game

JALAPEÑOS RULE!

1993 Fantasy Bowl Champs, 29-20

The only two AWWFL players to be cut this week each scored nine points. But their teams didn't need them, as 29 was the magic number on Bowl weekend.

It was happy holidays for the Jalapeños, the team of destiny in 1993, who cut Courtney "9 points" Hawkins to pick up Mark Clayton. Clayton did not contribute, but the Peños got enough to beat the Annihilators, 29-20. The Anils, who had pushed the right free-agency buttons to get to the big game, decided to stand pat and started Dalton "let me play Mora" Hilliard. Their playoff find, Scottie Graham of the Vikes, posted nine points, but the Buffalo Defenses scored 19 points less than the week before, and the Anils couldn't get any help from anywhere else.

The Cowboys waved Eric "180 yards and a TD" Pegrum to go instead with the "Moose," Darryl Johnson, in their Consolation Bowl matchup with the Ballbusters. The omens came early. Steve Young and John Taylor were held scoreless on Saturday. In the Dallas game on Sunday, the real Pokes had the ball in TD territory. With the entire stadium chanting "Mooooose," Aikman handed off to... Cowboy opponent, Ballbuster Emmitt Smith. But Smith was stopped short of the goal line. Once again in the 2-back set, the crowd is chanting even louder, "Mooooose..." as Smith goes in for the score. Moose also blocked for Lincoln Coleman to take one in. (Whatever happened to that Lassic guy?)

So, it looked like fate might be against the Cowboys, who had made a heavy wager in the consolation bowl: as proposed right here in Weekly Update, the Ballbusters put up their two 50-yard line seats to the Oilers' playoff game (s) up against $500 cash per home game the Oilers have in the playoffs. Alvin Harper was the only AWWFL Poke to score, while the Busters had Marcus Allen and the Kansas City Defense going on Sunday Night. But things are not always as they first appear. As the highlights shows came on late Sunday, it appeared that perhaps the New Orleans bottom game would come up big. Allen and the KC-D did not. The morning papers confirmed it, the Saints bottom game came up with 23 points. The Busters struggled to score 19. For the Busters, that's two fourth place finishes in a row. For the Cowboys, that's two tickets on the 50!

The Peños won the way they have done it all year; with balanced scoring. The Falcons struggled, but the Peños still got nine points from the Hebert/Rison combo. Both of their running backs put six on the board. The bottom game contributed a sub-par eight points, but the toppers had already scored enough to win this time around. The Peños finished with the #2 QB in scoring (Hebert/78); two RBs in the top ten, including Watters (#3/69) and Bennett (#10/48). They had two of the top ten receivers, including #2 Rison (102) and #8 Proehl (45). They picked up kicker Al Del Greco when he was of the WEEK (17)

continued on page 2

FANTASY PLAYERS

- Packers Defense, Raiders (bench) (22)
- Natrone Means, McRockers (bench) (21)
- Philly Defense, Unsigned (20)
- Ron Moore, McRockers (15)
- Leonard Russell, McRockers (bench) (15)